Author's letter

Candid's 2022 Nonprofit Compensation Report, the 22nd in our annual series, is derived from information on more than 140,000 individual positions at 88,000 tax-exempt organizations. The executive summary presents findings based not only on this report but also on data for previous years.

Our report remains the only large-scale analysis of its kind, based entirely on data reported to the IRS. It also continues to be the most comprehensive nonprofit compensation study available.

Accurate, complete, and authoritative information on the nonprofit sector is more important than ever. The Pension Protection Act of 2006 increased the penalties for excessive benefit transactions, including overpayment of nonprofit executives. Meanwhile, Congress, donors, and the media continue to scrutinize nonprofit salaries.

Nonprofits must demonstrate to oversight agencies, grantmakers of all types (government, corporations, and private foundations), and individual donors that the salaries and benefits they offer are justified. They must document their compensation practices and be prepared to help their supporters understand why these practices are appropriate. Candid's 2022 Nonprofit Compensation Report is a valuable tool for achieving these goals.

In the year ahead, Candid will be laying out plans for the 2023 edition. Feedback and comments are very much welcome. Please email your thoughts to products@candid.org.

Candid's 2022 Nonprofit Compensation Report reviews key employee compensation based on 140,947 observations from 87,529 Forms 990 and 990-EZ filed by 501(c) organizations with the IRS for fiscal year 2020. The report remains the only large-scale analysis of its kind based entirely on data reported to the IRS. It also continues to be the most comprehensive nonprofit compensation study available.

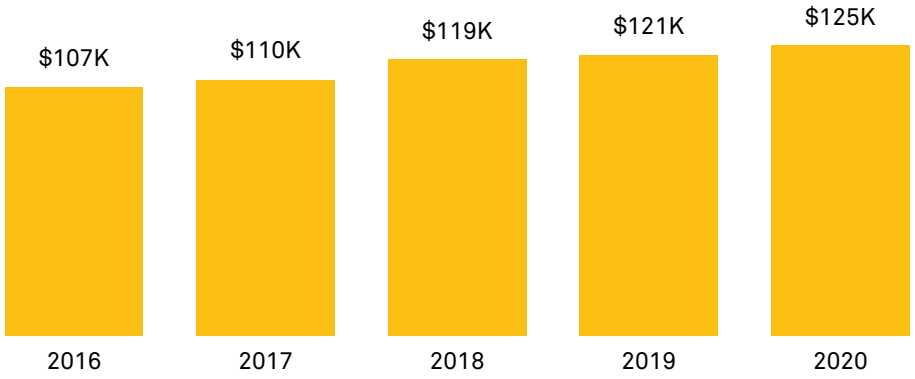
Trends over time

This year's report found that most of the trends we observed in 2019 continued in 2020.



Highlighted below are some of those trends.

Nonprofit Compensation Report Methodology

Candid's 2022 Nonprofit Compensation Report draws exclusively from data reported on Forms 990 and 990-EZ. These are information returns filed annually with the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) by most tax-exempt organizations. The 990 is used by organizations with annual revenues of $200,000 or more, and the 990-EZ is used by organizations with annual revenues of $200,000 or less and EOY assets of less than $500,000. Organizations are instructed to supply compensation information for all officers, directors, trustees (no minimum compensation threshold), and up to 20 key employees who earn at least $150,000. Additionally, information is provided for certain other employees who earn at least $100,000. Private foundations, which are organizations that file the 990-PF, are not included in the report.

The report considers 140,947 observations from 87,529 forms filed with the Internal Revenue Service by section 501(c) nonprofits for fiscal year 2020. Statistics are reported on total compensation; for the purposes of this report, total compensation is defined as the sum of Form 990, Part VII, Line 1a, Columns D, E, and F, or Form 990-EZ, Part IV, Columns C, D, and E, and Part VI, Columns C, D, and E. Individuals with total compensation of less than $15,000 were not included in order to make the cleansing and processing of the data more manageable. The vast majority of the filings examined for this report, 95%, were 990s; only 5% were EZs.

Candid's 2022 Nonprofit Compensation Report also reports statistics on annual changes in total compensation. Because these statistics are driven by direct comparison with 2019 data for individuals who held the same positions at the same organizations, this data is less rich. It includes 85,461 observations from 57,289 organizations.

Job categories

The report shows the following job categories, assigned by a classification model, broken down by various combinations of gender, geography, organization type, and organization size. Because of the way organizations are required to report compensation on Form 990, only one position is available for most organizations, that of CEO/Executive Director. The report is extremely robust in that area, less so in the others. The chart below lists the number of individuals in the report who were classified into each job category and provides a few examples of the types of job titles mapped to each one.

Note: A single position might be coded into more than one job category. For example, if a person's title was director of finance and administration, and no other person at the organization was more highly compensated in either area, the position was coded as both the top financial position and the top administrative position.

Gender

In the tables where the data is split out by gender, gender has been assigned using data from the Social Security Administration. The Social Security Administration provides separate annual files containing name, sex, and number of individuals born in the United States with a Social Security number. Names with five or more occurrences are listed. The data set used to assign gender in this report was limited to data from 1930 to 2000, with the assumption that individuals listed on organizations' IRS filings would be between the ages of 20 and 90. The number of occurrences for each name for each sex during this period was totaled and the percentage of time a given name was assigned a specific gender was calculated. For example, the name Mary was given to females in 99.6% of observations and to males in 0.4%. Only names with 20 or more total occurrences and a male/female percentage greater than 70% were used to assign gender in this report. Individuals listed on the tax filings with names that were not included in the Social Security Administration data set or with male/female percentages less than 70% were assigned an unknown gender.

Output display

For each combination of variables with at least five observations, information is displayed. When there are fewer than 10 observations, only the average and median values are displayed. For between 10 and 20 observations, we display the average and the 25th, median (50th percentile), and 75th percentiles. For more than 20 observations, the 10th and 90th percentiles are also displayed. These percentile values approximate the distribution of compensation within a given category. As an example, if the 25th percentile value is $43,278, this means that about 25% of employees in the category made less than $43,278 and about 75% made more than that.

In cases where there are few observations, the median is likely to be the most reliable statistic. Still, this report does not use sampling but draws instead from every fiscal year 2020 Forms 990 and 990-EZ available to the author on August 1, 2022, on which compensation information was reported and could be codified. In most categories where the number of observations is small, it is because the number of such organizations in the entire population is as small or almost as small.

In general, the report is not useful for comparisons across categories, especially when the number of observations is small. For example, in the $250K–$500K budget group, the median salary for the top legal position is $101,082, versus $67,411 for CEOs. The CEO median, however, is based on 10,998 organizations, whereas that for the top legal position is based on only 18 organizations, and the CEO is more highly compensated (or is also in the top legal position) in eight of those 18.

Besides job category, results are displayed for various combinations of gender, organization size, geography, and organization type. As noted above, gender was determined using data from the Social Security Administration.

Organization budget size

Organization size is represented here by annual expenses. Two different groupings are used, depending on the amount of information available for a particular table:

Four groups:

- $500,000 or less
- $500,001 to $1,000,000
- $1,000,001 to $5,000,000

Organization type

There are two primary organization type groupings in this report: 501(c)(3) organizations and other subsections.

Section 501(c)(3) organizations are classified using the National Taxonomy of Exempt Entities (NTEE), a hierarchical system developed by the National Center for Charitable Statistics (NCCS) and used to group nonprofit organizations. Some 74,576 filings fall into this category.

The report uses three levels of hierarchy for 501(c)(3)s: NTEE major group (general), NTEE decile group (more specific), and NTEE centile group (most specific). For example, the Museum of Modern Art belongs to the NTEE major group "Arts, culture, & humanities"; the NTEE decile group "Museums"; and the NTEE centile group "Art museums." More information about the NTEE system, including definitions, is available at the NCCS website. Note: N.E.C. below means "not elsewhere classified."

A full list of the major, decile, and centile NTEE codes used in this report can be found in Appendix B.

Nonprofit organizations that fall outside the 501(c)(3) category are listed by their IRS subsections in the Other subsections portions of the report. Of the 87,529 filings in this report, 12,953 fall into this category.
